FLIGHT. By Mikhail Bulgakov. Translated by Michael Glenny. Adapted for radio and directed by Don Taylor. In 1920, the Russian Civil War is ending with the collapse of the White forces and the triumph of the Bolsheviks. For the defeated White officers and the refugees who have gathered around them in the Crimea, the only escape seems to be across the sea, to a life of exile.

Flight is a play by Ukrainian writer Mikhail Bulgakov. It is set during the end of the Russian Civil War, when the remnants of the White Army are desperately resisting the Red Army on the Crimean isthmus. The lives of the abandoned Serafima Korzukhina, the university professor Sergei Golubkov and the White generals Charnota and Khludov are closely intertwined.

text of Bulgakov's first novel. The White Guard, written in the twenties and dealing with nearly contemporary events of the Russian civil war in his native Kiev and the Ukraine, a book which in its clear-sighted portrayal of human courage and weakness ranks among the truest depictions of war in all of literature. Bulgakov was known well enough, then.
