An unincorporated business is simpler and cheaper to run than a corporation, but incorporating provides legal protection against your personal assets being seized for business debts. Forming a limited liability company is simpler than incorporating and provides the same sort of asset protection.

Unincorporated Businesses - Sole Traders. The most common type of unincorporated business is the sole trader. A sole trader is just an individual owning the business on his/her own. Remember that a sole trader can also employ people - but those employees don't share in the ownership of the business. The sole trader owns all the business assets personally and is personally responsible for the business debts.
