A site index geographic information system (GIS) layer is being developed for British Columbia so that estimated site indices are available for the major commercial tree species across their ranges. The Site Index - Biogeoclimatic Ecosystem Classification (SIBEC)/predictive ecosystem map (PEM)/terrestrial ecosystem map (TEM) method will be used to populate the layer with site index by species. However, there will be gaps in the layer where there are no PEM/TEM or SIBEC data. The biophysical models resulting from this project will be used to fill these gaps. They predict, by species, site index from biogeoclimatic zone, slope, aspect, elevation, and climate variables. Data for these models come from the SIBEC project and various Site Index Adjustment projects. The climate variables are predicted from the ClimateWNA model. A biophysical model was fit separately for the following species: trembling aspen (Populus tremuloides), amabilis fir (Abies amabilis), subalpine fir (Abies lasiocarpa), western redcedar (Thuja plicata, coastal and interior), paper birch (Betula papyrifera),

Conditional Cash Transfer (CCT) programs aim to reduce poverty by making welfare programs conditional upon the receivers' actions. That is, the government only transfers the money to persons who meet certain criteria. These criteria may include enrolling children into public schools, getting regular check-ups at the doctor's office, receiving vaccinations, or the like. They have been hailed as a way of reducing inequality and helping households break out of a vicious cycle whereby poverty is transmitted from one generation to another. Do these and other claims make sense? Are they supported by the available empirical evidence? This volume seeks to answer these and other related questions.

Specifically, it lays out a conceptual framework for thinking about the economic rationale for CCTs; it reviews the very rich evidence that has accumulated on CCTs; it discusses how the conceptual framework and the evidence on impacts should inform the design of CCT programs in practice; and it discusses how CCTs fit in the context of broader social policies. The authors show that there is considerable evidence that CCTs have improved the lives of poor people and argue that conditional cash transfers have been an effective way of redistributing income to the poor. They also recognize that even the best-designed and managed CCT cannot fulfill all of the needs of a comprehensive social protection system. They therefore need to be complemented with other interventions, such as workfare or employment programs, and social pensions.
